

ZEALAYA MUST BIG BIG BIG YIELD BY 10 TO-DAY INCENDIARY

Such Is the United States Ultimatum, According to a New York Report Threatening Land Troops at Corinto

Defence of Execution of Two Americans Is Rejected at Washington; Acts Regarded as Violation of Nations' Laws

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Reports come from New York that Zealaya has been given ten days to withdraw, under penalty of military arrangements with the United States, and that in case of failure, the United States will march against Corinto.

The reports originate with Americans who have resided in Nicaragua. The State Department does not confirm the rumor.

President Zealaya's complete defence, as set forth in his oblique to William Randolph Hearst, published today by the Boston American, will be laid before the State Department.

The diplomatic and urgent request from the State Department does not seem at this time to make any public comment on the attitude of the Nicaraguan President, but it may be said on authority that Zealaya's defence is not sufficient and that the coercive measures of this government are proceeding with all dispatch.

One important result to the State Department of the cablegram to Mr. Hearst is that it presents Zealaya's defence from his point of view, which is the sole point of view of defence, and yet is not feasible, according to the American diplomatic.

Secretary Knox called on the President today and discussed with him the increasing importance of the situation with Nicaragua. Neither Secretary Knox nor the President made any comment for publication on the developments up to date.

Execution Was Unjustifiable

It is admitted everywhere that the execution of Zealaya was a violation of the laws of the United States, for which Nicaragua is held responsible, in the states of the two American nations, who were shot after a drumhead court-martial by President Zealaya. The attitude of this government is not such, according to the State Department, in the following from Mr. Walter Ackerman Secretary of State:

The law of war forbids the shooting, killing, imprisonment into the hands of the enemy, or the shooting, killing, imprisonment of prisoners of war unless they have been guilty of some grave crime, and from the violation of this law no civilized state can shrink in the least.

Both the State Department and the War Department hold that neither Zealaya nor Cannon committed any crime in the light of this definition. The War Department says that even if Zealaya and Cannon were caught in the act of trying to blow up one of Zealaya's ships, it was not a crime but one of the ordinary acts of ordinary warfare.

The same thing has been done over and over again in every ancient and modern war, whether the war be regularly declared or it be a civil war, as in the case of Nicaragua.

Neither State Department authority says:

Prisoners of war are to be considered as intermediaries and not as criminals, and are to be treated accordingly, although the question of detention or liberation is one affecting the interests of the captor alone, and therefore one with which no other government might be interfered in any way; yet the right to detain by as means implies a disposition of the prisoners at the pleasure of the captor.

Intervention Justified.

There is no lack of precedent for action in the Greco-Cuman case, even admitting that they were in the rebel army. The whole point is that that in violation, that Zealaya is outside of the pale of the international laws by his execution of prisoners of war without referring their case to the United States, or which he knew they were citizens.

The State Department does not accept as revealing the gratuitous statement Zealaya to Mr. Hearst that the Governor of the State once pardoned Cannon, the controversy is that the Governor of the State once pardoned Cannon committed any crime by the laws of the United States.

FRANK, who is thought to have been of an incendiary origin, mysteriously disappeared the Boston Globe Works, in North Boston, Quincy, last night. The loss is estimated at $10,000. The incendiary, and some of the other men who were well known, Frank Burgess of Beach street, Waltham, is the sole person of the concern.

The fire was discovered by Robert Murphy, who lives on the corner of the fire, is held in custody, shortly after the first alarm was given at 9:25, turned in a general alarm which called out practically the entire fire department to fight the flames.

MRS. GEORGE LAW'S LUGGAGE HELD UP

American Leader in European Society Runs Against One of Loeb's New Buldings.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Mrs. George Law, one of the most noted American women in society in London and Paris, is the latest person to have her trunks sent to the customs house under the new rulings of Collector Loeb.

Mrs. Law, who has lived abroad almost continuously since the death of her husband, the former street railway president, in 1896, arrived in New York on the Mauretania Friday. She brought a dozen trunks containing wearing apparel valued at $10,000. She made no declaration except that she was a resident of London and Paris, and for this reason her goods were not dutiable.

Under previous rulings the effects of an American who had maintained a residence abroad for two years and still lived there were not subject to duty on visits here. The new ruling states that if the American, or European, who they had maintained homes for a few years to give their children the advantage of a foreign education in art and music, brought back goods to the value of thousands.

The new rule says that residence abroad must be "continuous" and it was upon this ruling that the trunks of Mrs. Law were held. There were many friends of Mrs. Law at the pier endeavoring to save her the annoyance of having her trunks sent to the Custom House. Even an official of the Customs had later told her that she was not liable for duty on the trunks. When she said he had information that the American woman, who has been a welcome visitor to Windsor Castle, had been in this city within a year, she ended her protest and went to the Custom House for a

Mrs. Law's friends were indignant, asserting that if any woman had a right to claim a foreign residence, it was the Parisian. She had both in Paris and London. Her Paris home for the past year has been No. 30 Avenue d'Antin. It is now more than four years since she left Paris for London. No. 23 Norfolk street, Mayfair, London. There she gave her entertainments to which society in London, including royalty, was invited before the war but set aside when it broke out upon the beautiful widow, where she was termed "La Belle Amer-

HILL FEARS FOOD FAMINE.
"When Consumption Is Close on Production Danger Is Near."
 ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 27.—James H. Hill today told the House of Representatives that by Bradstreet's this week the statement was made that the world is on the verge of a famine because of the effect that consumption of food products had caught up with the production.
 "If the report is authentic the great danger," the senator says, "for foodstuffs is now a danger point."
 "When the consumption of food products exceeds the production," he said, "when does the statement, 'there is danger of a world famine' as we were told, become a reality as we were told? We are consuming foodstuffs more rapidly than we are producing them, therefore, sooner or later we are bound to run into a shortage down to a basis of supply and demand." The senator said that the world's production of food in the year of 1903 and places the yield of the six leading crops above the average of the past 10 years, which was itself decreased a beautiful year. The present crop of wheat, for example, he said, is 10 per cent. below the average record yield of the past.

"RIP VAN WINKLE" TO CLEAN UP CITY

Seeks Mayoralty.

MARLBORO, Nov. 27.—Theodore Temple, the former candidate for mayor of Marlboro, is a politician.

Twenty years ago Theodore Temple was a power in politics. He was the exponent of the conservatism, those who objected to a town of 11,000 inhabitants becoming a city. He was defeated. Thereupon he uttered a prediction:

"I'll give you twenty years to make good your promises," he declared. If at the end that time Marlboro is a great life, happy and prosperous, well and good. If not I will come back and drive you out.

At that time he was forty-three years old. Then he went back into the hills where his farm is located and, as far as politics were concerned, numbered for twenty years. Again and again his friends urged him to get into the legislature, but he said "I'd give you twenty years, and I will." Was his reply, and with patience he waited. Now the twenty years are up and Will Van Winkle has returned.

He harassed Bracht and Brown, who, sleek, black, keen, into the big city where he used to be. He had preceded him a life and drum corp and surrounded by faithful friends, left his farm and rode down the Boston road toward Marlboro City. He was the first of the car war banners reading: "Your Candidate for Mayor, Farmer Temple."

Attacks Both Parties.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he declared, "I come into your city as our forefathers did, and I'll never rest contented until I have driven right into City Hall."

Farmer Temple spoke in three places and drew big crowds. He pitched into the Republican Mayor, Parsons, and the Republican City Chairman Bert Adams, and declared that he would not be satisfied until he was made impartial, he hauled it also to the Democratic candidates for all offices.

"If Napoleon Bonaparte came to Mississippi he couldn't have collected a larger crowd than I have brought to a meeting here," he said.

Before that slugging was common, but it was not a part of the game. It was a strategy on each side and fought more as a savage and a wild competition.

Slugging Is Abolished

Slugging was abolished. Heavy penalties are inflicted for it. The most useful players of the big league now consider that slugging is a thing of the past. It is not done on either side to do the slugging. The slugging is done by the fans. It is an example of this. Several times Harvard men tried to incite their Yale opponents

A THOUGHT-BRIDGE FORTY MILLION MILES LONG

N a savage state human beings think of nothing nobler than where the next meal is to come from. The narrower a man's soul the narrower are his thoughts.

Among civilized human beings interests are wider. The further a man can send his thoughts away from himself, the more deeply he thinks of the future and the past, the greater he is.

To-day there is no more fascinating study than that of the other planets, which, like the earth, sweep about the sun in never ending ellipses.

To feel that beyond this world are other worlds—some of them, possibly, peopled with living, breathing, thinking creatures, with occupations, ideals and ambitions—is to realize the unimportance of our own little sorrows and annoyances and to become inspired with a deep reverence for the Master Intelligence which directs the stars in their orbits.

To-day the attention of astronomers is chiefly centred upon two inhabitants of space—Halley's comet, which will soon swing into plain view of all the people of the earth, and the planet Mars, which is declared to be populated by a race of people or beings more energetic and possibly more advanced than the citizens of the earth.

The study of Mars is intensely interesting. If conditions there are what they are believed to be, its inhabitants are now engaged in a struggle for existence such as is undreamed of in this well-watered and richly endowed planet.

And in that struggle—that desperate fight with nature for very life—it is believed that the intelligence of the Martians has been developed to an extent such as we little comprehend, while their energy and activity surpass a million fold the greatest human endeavors that have been recorded.

In the earth the oceans enclosing the continents round about are the source of all life. From them first came the creatures that in the course of ages developed into men, and from them still comes the water that keeps life alive upon the land, to return to the mother ocean when its work is done.

But because of its smaller size Mars has cooled and aged faster than the earth. Because of its lower power of attraction it has lost most of its water, until the oceans have dried in their beds, like little pools of rain in the sunshine, and only at the poles is there any remaining.

Imagine a race of beings dwelling on a planet as barren as the Sahara desert, and finding it necessary, in order to obtain food, to bring water from the polar ice caps for two thousand miles, that vegetation may still flourish, and that they may be saved from starving.

There is hope of escaping from a desert island, to whose shore help may come across the sea; but when the island is a planet, swinging in space, there is nothing for its people to do but work—work incessantly—to save the resources that still exist.

And so, if the deductions of astronomers who long have studied the planet are correct, the Martians have worked heroically for centuries, digging canals from the polar ice pack down across the beds of the dried up oceans.

Along the lines of the canals can be seen the dark markings which are believed to be the vegetable growths that spring up along the track of the life-giving water.

Around the white caps at the poles can be seen in the Spring a blue line of water, receding rapidly as the season advances, and the water is, presumably, drawn off into the long canals which form the tremendous irrigation system of the Martians.

Lately, within the last few weeks, the scientists who through their powerful telescopes were studying Mars from the mountain tops saw above its surface a terrific disturbance.

This they first thought was some vast cataclysm, possibly a storm of tremendous proportions, or a series of volcanic eruptions sufficient to destroy all life on the planet and end forever the gallant age-long struggle for existence.

Such an end to such a battle would have been a tragedy compared to which the tragedies of this world would seem pretty trifling affairs.

Later observations of the planet seem to indicate that the disturbance was only a passing one, probably atmospheric, and that life on the little planet continues much as before.

When we consider that in all probability conditions upon Mars will in the course of ages be repeated upon this earth its study becomes of absorbing interest.

To-day there is such an abundance on our own planet that it is only because of stupidity and slothfulness that poverty and hunger exist.

With apparently inexhaustible oceans giving their waters to the clouds, to be returned in rain to the land, vegetation should be abundant everywhere.

In the West we are now beginning to reclaim desert lands, once only productive of sage brush and prairie dogs.

In another century it is probable that Sahara itself will be reclaimed, and that the vast stretches where no life exists will be as fertile as the widely scattered oases.

But a time will come when the earth will begin to lose its abundance, when the waters of the ocean will subside as they are drawn off in vapor into space, and when the people will need the same intelligence, the same industry and the same courage as the Martians to maintain their existence.

It will not come till thousands of years have passed, each year bringing its little advance in intelligence and ingenuity.

When it does come the generations that are here to see it will know how to meet it.

And in meeting it they will without doubt reach their highest development, for only in time of struggle and need is the human brain made to do its best; only in a fight for life does it sound the depth of its resources.

This Is For You! Get Busy! This Is For You!

A Complete Dinner Service for 6 Persons

44 PIECES—Highest Grade American Semi-Porcelain—44 PIECES

The picture of this exquisitely decorated set of dishes, although reproduced from a photograph, can give no conception or idea of its beauty. It is impossible to reproduce in a picture the dainty and elegant decorations, the thinness of the ware, the richness of the glaze, the artistic models and patterns of the pieces. We guarantee absolutely that the workmanship, decoration and finish of our sets are equal in every respect to the very highest priced Haviland, Limoges or English imported china.

The decorations on these sets consist of garlands of roses interspersed with artistic scroll work in gold; the effect is both novel and attractive, yet dainty and conservative. The roses, buds and ferns are shown in their natural colors, and all the splendor, glory and beauty of the original natural coloring are brought out.

A useful, practical set for every day use, consisting of the following pieces: Six large plates, 6 tea plates, 6 soup plates, 6 dessert dishes, 6 cups, 6 saucers, 6 individual butter dishes, 1 large meat platter, 1 oval vegetable dish.

Any reader of the Boston American can secure this splendid dinner service, packed carefully in a wooden box, for Thirty Household Coupons of consecutive dates and $2.00; or $2.25 delivered by wagon or express. Retail value $6.50.

All that is required to get any of the Premiums is 30 coupons of consecutive dates and a small cash payment.

1. The first step is to identify the key components of the system. This includes understanding the hardware, software, and data sources involved. The next step is to define the goals and objectives of the project. This will help to determine the scope of the work and the resources required. The third step is to develop a detailed plan of action. This should include a timeline, a list of tasks, and a budget. The final step is to implement the plan and monitor the progress. This will allow you to identify any issues early on and make adjustments as needed.

THOUGHTLESS WOMEN!

How the Women who Buy Fashionable Hats Make it Profitable for the Plumage Hunters to Shoot the Mother Egret and Leave the Little Ones in the Nest to Starve.

THIS is a great season for feathers on hats, as most people know, and the result is that countless thousands of unhappy birds are being slaughtered with great cruelty by those thoughtless women who must be in the fashion. The favorite hat ornament is known as the "osprey plume," although it really comes from a bird of the heron family, called the egret. The true osprey is a fish hawk, without feathers suitable for this purpose.

The feathers most coveted come from the head of the egret, and only appear there during the breeding season, when the mother bird is suspiciously known as "egrets," "aligrettes" and "osprey plumes," the last being the usual expression in the present language of fashion.

Professor Newton, the famous ornithologist, declares that the collection of these feathers causes "the most abominable cruelty practiced in the animal world." It is the custom of the hunter to trap the mother bird or shoot her with a light charge of shot, the object being to injure the feathers as little as possible. He seizes hold of the poor creature, usually still alive, and plucks from her quivering body the two or three feathers that are useful for purposes of fashion.

Having taken his spoil, he throws the bird aside, perhaps with a broken wing or a broken leg, or some other injury that leaves her helpless on the spot until she dies.

The mother bird when caught is generally engaged in finding food for her growing family of young ones. While she is trapped and mortally injured there are probably six chicks in the nest waiting for food. For a day or more the young chicks go on crying and chattering for food, but their devoted mother never comes back, for she lies somewhere dead or dying. The cries of the young ones gradually grow weaker, until at last they all die of starvation in the nest.

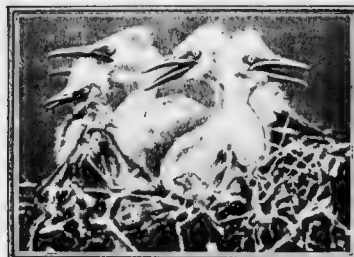

Thus a mother is killed with cruel torture and a whole family of little ones starved in order to gratify the vanity of one thoughtless woman for a few weeks.

In Florida the egrets and herons have been almost exterminated by hunters. Naturalists and lovers of animals in all parts of the world are now striving to prevent the destruction of a particularly beautiful race of birds merely for purposes of personal adornment.

Queen Alexandra of England has written that she will do all in her power to discourage the cruelty practiced on these beautiful birds.

TRAGEDY AND MYSTERY OF NERO'S HIDDEN STATUE

How One of the Greatest Masterpieces of Ancient Art Which Had Looked Down On the Roman Court's Orgies Was Strangely Concealed For Ages Within a Wall, Revealed by a Storm, Broken by a Fisherman and Rescued At Last by the Italian Government.

It was a stormy night, and the sea was in a fury. A fisherman, returning from his boat, had just reached the shore when he noticed a strange light emanating from a crack in the wall of the ruins of Nero's villa. He went to investigate, and found a statue of a young girl, which he carried off to his home. The statue was of a beautiful girl, and was of a very fine quality. It was the statue of the "Young Girl of Antium," which had been hidden in the wall for centuries.

Under the auspices of the new movement, various public institutions throughout the United States have been established to teach children the proper way to brush their teeth. These institutions are known as dental clinics, and they are located in schools, libraries, and other public places. The purpose of these clinics is to provide children with the knowledge and skills they need to keep their mouths healthy and their teeth clean.

The New Massage

By Mme. Lina Cavalieri.
the Most Famous Living Beauty

WHILE on her recent tour of Russia and while filling operatic engagements in Paris, Mme. Cavalieri studied the latest methods of beauty culture and to-day gives the readers of this newspaper the benefit of what she learned. The tendency of Paris taste and Paris belief just now is "away from mass age as we have known it," says the prima donna and beauty. She writes of the new massage, in structing all readers of this page how to perform it.

She gives valuable advice as to creams and other emollients, to be used in the new massage. She also makes answer to some of the inquiries addressed to her by admiring and grateful students of her system of beauty culture. Her topic next week will be, "New Beauty Fads I Learned in Paris."

By Mme. Lina Cavalieri.

MASSAGE, as we have known it, is passing out of favor in Paris. A new and lighter massage, called patting, is supplanting it. I will write to-day of this, the new massage.

It has been found that there are few of the massage motions that do not drag the skin, detach it from the underlying muscles, and, in the end, iron in more wrinkles than they iron out. It is while the hand is attached, it is as well known as ever before that good circulation is the key to beauty as to health. And it is necessary to stimulate the circulation in the face to make the muscles firm and the skin clear and fair. So the new, or modified, massage has been adopted, and medical experts are approving it.

The new massage is gentler than the old. It mounds none of the muscles. It is to the old massage as the sun is to the wind. What the rough, stormy process fails to do, the gentle often accomplishes. The new massage is a process of coaxing the blood to the surface. The old was a pulling down of old structure, without rebuilding a new structure. The new massage, or patting process, is built up to the firm yet light stroke of a feather. Imagine the face the key and of the patting-mass. There are six areas to be treated by the facial massage. The forehead, the eye region, the cheeks, the nose, between the ends of the nostrils and the corners of the mouth, the region in front of the ears, the chin.

The new process the lines about the eyes, and deepened not merely moved, but pulled, as by the old. Wrinkles are removed by atrophy of the muscles beneath the skin. To remove them the muscles must be pulled to their former size and vigor. It is upon this platform that the new massage is based. The blood is therefore coaxed to the surface and persuaded to permeate every fibre of the muscles, rebuilding and strengthening them.

As to the fingers should do three patting upon the crown of the foot, or bang, on the lines. The muscles beneath them are small and delicate.

There should be no such stream of blood coaxed there as is needed to nourish the muscles of the cheeks, for instance. The pressure should be very slight, but such pressure as there is should extend toward the hair line.

So with the deep, vertical lines between the eyebrows—the lines that are formed by one of two causes, either worry or concentration. Begin between the eyebrows a gentle patting that extends in an arch above the brows, following a line parallel with the eyebrows. The lines of concentration should be treated in the same way. With the tips of the fingers pat the forehead lightly from eyebrows to hairline, repeating the process until the blood surges the brows with a rich glow.

The lines in front of the ears should be treated by the same process. There should be the same soft, light patting, coaxing the blood to the surface but in no way drawing the skin. That must be avoided always, the dragging and loosening of the skin.

The cheeks require more drastic treatment. The muscles being large and heavy, it requires more strength to call the blood through the interlacing meshes of muscles and to feed all the multiple tissues. For this reason the patting does not suffice. The cheek muscles require deep, firm pressure. The pressure should be given slowly, with the tips of the fingers, the hands straight, and resembles more than anything else the kneading of bread.

The patting process is excellent also for the neck. Between the tendons the flesh is liable to sag, and the patting draws the flesh up to the surface and feeds the shrinking tissues. At the back, as at the front of the neck, this process should continue. The blood should also be coaxed to flow freely behind the ears where the skin has a tendency to grow yellow. The motion between the tendons should be of the light, patting, rotary sort, but along the heavy muscles, just beneath the corners of the jaw, the condition like those of the cheeks. There must be a

"Begin between the eyebrows a gentle patting that extends in an arch above the brows."

"To correct loose or double chins, rub the skin gently upwards with the tips of the fingers."

Who Writes Here
of the New Massage and How To Accomplish It.

"To remove the lines of earnestness, pat the forehead lightly from eyebrows to hairline, repeating this till the brows are in a glow."

Imagine the face the keyboard of a piano and play lightly the octave between the nostrils and corners of the mouth."

Essence of cucumber, 2 ounces.
Infusion of camomile, 2 ounces.
Spermaceti, 1 ounce.
White wax, 1 ounce.
Stiff oil, 1 ounce.
Almond oil, 1 ounce.

Essence of almond, 3 1/2 ounces.
Rose water, 7 1/2 ounces.
Pink sandalwood, 3 grains.
Spermaceti, 1 ounce.
White wax, 1 ounce.
Stiff oil, 1 ounce.

A correspondent writes: "Please send a recipe for reduction, something that I can take to relieve an angry fat abdomen, that is the only way to reduce quickly." I drink a great deal of water. Reduces your allowance of food. These are the only internal medicine remedies I care to recommend if you insist upon taking any other, ask the advice of a reliable chemist.

A little San Francisco maid asks me: "What can I take to make my lips rosy red?" They are rather pale.

The Oakland correspondent who wants to make her hair a darker red should use a "stronger solution of the henna. Try increasing the amount of henna by one half." From Pennsylvania comes a letter whose writer wants to remove superfluous hair from her chin, but "objects to the electric needle." The only alternative I recommend is depilatory powder. Buy a bottle of such powder from a responsible chemist. Make a thin paste. Spread this on your chin. Let it remain on for one minute or two, or until you feel a slightly stinging sensation. Then quickly remove it with a hairbrush, as a dull paperknife made of celluloid, and immediately spread a pure cold cream on the face.

A Delaware girl asks what she may do to restore that naturally feature, a red nose, to its normal color. "I drink plenty of water and I don't wear tight clothes," she explains. That is singular, for the red nose, granted that my little friend has no alcoholic affection, is usually caused by indigestion or tight clothing, both affecting the circulation.

In the first stages of the trouble Parisians take the unfortunate feature frequently with the, recommended by Dr. Vignier:

Hot water, 50 grams.
Honey, 50 grams.
Tincture of benzoin, 1 gram.
Sulphate of potassium, 1 gram.

If it has become chronic, this, massaged freely into the affected organ, is recommended by Dr. Vignier:

Hot water, 50 grams.
Honey, 50 grams.
Tincture of benzoin, 1 gram.
Sulphate of potassium, 1 gram.

An inquirer describes her anxieties about her complexion. "What can I do to clear my face of pimples such as I do have?" I can always feel them under the skin before they come to light at all. The spots are sore and when pressed feel like a bruise. Gradually they rise through the skin. The condition of your individual case. If you cannot do this, take one of the spring medicines that are so common in the market. They are recommended. Take it, no matter what the season.

There may be symptoms of an alternate state, autumn and melancholia, or summer and autumn, which is so commonly recognized as a "seasonal" ailment that we find it named on the walls of restaurants in this country and in the March, April and May.

A woman complains that her hair is coming out. She is troubled by wearing the Marcel wave. She says the ends are broken and her hair is thin and uneven, presenting an untidy appearance. Allow your hair to be straight, if Nature planned it so. Find some becoming method of wearing it straight. But about raising a new and stronger crop of hair. But first prepare the soil for the new crop by cleansing your scalp with French shampooing every other day if necessary, and by using on it a good oil. Olive oil is an admirable agent for loosening and feeding a head that is soiled. Have the ends snipped or clipped. Massage the scalp every day, unless it is too tender to endure massage that often. Irritating the nerves, which protest against such treatment, does far more harm than good. A few years ago there were almost no good hair tonics. Now there are many. Almost any tonic containing a liberal amount of quinine is a good hair-tonic.

"The cheek muscles require deep, firm pressure. To pressure should be given slowly, with the tips of the fingers."

Of the following creams will serve well for massage:

Oil of sweet almond, 100 grams.
Spermaceti, 100 grams.
White wax, 100 grams.
Rose water, 100 grams.

Use especially good for the neck, hands and arms which are to be uncovered that night:

Glycerin, 1 ounce.
Rose water, 1 ounce.
Olive oil, 1 ounce.

The old-fashioned Nidale cream has a strong claim upon many beauties of many nations. It is made this way:

Lanolin, 4 ounces.
Cocoa butter, 4 ounces.
Glycerin, 4 ounces.
Elder flower water, 3 ounces.
Rose water, 3 ounces.

This, valuable for its softening as well as softening effect, is not limited to use.

Milk of white almond, 3 ounces.
Strained honey, 2 ounces.
Cold cream, 4 ounces.
Orange flower water, 5 ounces.
